Our way to contribute to the progress of our nation

As students, we have an important role to play in contributing to the progress of our nation. We are the future leaders and innovators who will shape this country for generations to come. Therefore, it is essential that we take action now and make meaningful contributions towards making our name must-takers. The first step is education - by toward knowledge through formal schooling or self-study, students can become informed citizens who understand how their society works on both local and global levels. This understanding leads us to develop critical thinking skills which allow us identify problems within our communities as well as possible solutions for them; this helps create positive change from within ourselves outwards into society at large. Additionally, participating in extracurricular activities such as volunteering or joining clubs allows students gain new perspectives while developing social skills like communication which are necessary for working with others towards common goals these experiences also provide opportunities for networking with peers from different backgrounds which furthers mutual understanding between people of diverse opinions leading up closer togetherness among all citizens regardless of race or religion etc., thus helping unify nations under one banner: love your neighbour! The values which we must be characterized with to have a peaceful life.

The values we must possess to have a peaceful life are essential for living in harmony with ourselves, others and our environment. These values include respect, empathy, understanding, trustworthiness and kindness. Respect is the foundation of any relationship; it allows us to honor each other's. The surprising thing is that all it takes to enhance your relationship with friends and neighbors is respect for their feelings, concern for their property, and a helping hand when it's needed. Most neighbors enjoy making small talk with the folks on the other side of the fence, or over the balconies. So, it's good whenever you see them to smile, to wave, and to say hello. This breaks the ice and makes things warmer. Living peacefully requires effort but ultimately its worth every bit because doing so creates an environment full potential growth opportunity while providing comfort during difficult times too – making sure everyone involved receives the same level care regardless circumstance.

Most villages in Egypt suffer from shortage in some development sectors, services and facilities such as clean water networks, gas supplies, electricity, schools and hospitals. The initiative deals with developing agricultural projects in various areas in Egypt. It provides marketing and investing solutions to these lands in addition to all relevant businesses associated with the project; including the division of lands and proposing it to investors, small farmers and the youths for the cultivation and development of these lands. The vision of this initiative is to achieve sustainable development through a urbane investment to company lands, developing regional communities to attract the Egyptian investors and other small farmers and the youths to live and work in it. Regarding the countryside development, Egypt seeks to treat the wastewater which is dumped into sea or lakes, with the treated water to be reused in new projects across Sinai. Thus, a total of 100,000 feddans will be ready for agricultural use in Sinai using the treated water.

Test (2)

A team of researchers has come up with an electricity wireless system. This is a breakthrough in what will hopefully be a wireless future. They managed to light a 60-watt light bulb using magnetic fields. In the test, the power source was just two metres away from the light, but the team hopes they will soon be able to send electricity longer distances through the air. They have dubbed their new invention «WiTricity». Although wi-fi has been around for some years now, it has been limited to the transmission of information, especially between computers and modems, printers and scanners. This is the first time electrical appliances have been powered wirelessly.

This new development means that our houses may be free from tangled wires. Gone will be the days of having to unplug the vacuum to go from room to room and of having countless plugs hidden behind the TV and stereo.

The new source of delivering power to gadgets remotely may also reduce the number of fires caused by poor wiring and overloaded sockets. It turns out the concept is not so new. A century ago, Inventor Nikola Tesla struck upon the idea of building a huge tower in New York that would wirelessly beam power to the city. Unfortunately, his idea never came to fruition, until today, that is. Safety experts will be checking closely to ensure the power source causes us no harm.

Test (3)

Studies have shown that the physically unfit person is unable to withstand fatigue for longer periods than the fit one; he is better equipped to tolerate physical stress and has stronger and more efficient heart. There is a relationship between good mental alertness, absence of tension and physical fitness.

One way of being fit is through weight control. The major purpose of weight control is to reduce the amount of fat and to increase the amount of muscle. This control can be made only by coupling a sensible dietary programme with a regular balanced programme of exercise.

When we eat, the food is used, stored or discarded. The body stored fuel or calories as fat. The more fuel we consume and the less of it we use, then the more of it stored in the body in the form of fat.

When you exercise, you burn calories. As muscle is slightly heavier than fat, you may very well notice an increase in your weight rather than a reduction. However, it must be stressed that this muscle weight is useful weight and will improve the way you look and feel.

Research has shown clearly that the most effective way of taking off weight and keeping it off is through a programme which combines diet and exercise.

Test (4)

During the past decade there has been a considerable increase in the number of natural disasters which have caused hardships in many countries. Disasters are not confined to particular regions nor do they discriminate between developing and developed countries. For the past year alone, widespread floods in France, Hungary, Italy, Switzerland, Algeria and Vietnam as well as devastating earthquakes in Salvador and India have reminded us of the need to take global preventive measures against disasters.

During the 1990s, there was ten per cent annual increase in economic loss due to disasters. Global warming is expected to increase the incidence of disasters such as storms, droughts and floods. Although we continue to refer to these disasters as natural, they are, to a large extent, manmade. Population growth, together with population movements and displacements, the uncontrolled growth of mega cities, the increasing emissions of carbon dioxide, deforestation and desertification are all human factors which play a key role in the increase of natural disasters.

Perhaps the most significant lesson we have learnt from the recurrence of disasters is that «no man is an island» Solidarity, close coordination and long term commitment in such community issues are necessary to promote a culture of disaster prevention through collecting food aids, donating either money or blood, providing assistance, helping with medical care, and cleaning affected areas after disasters.

- 1 The main idea of the passage is

 - c It results in desertification.
 - d It decreases the culture of disaster prevention.
- 5 The underlined word (manmade) means
 - a man is the doer.
 - b global warming is the doer.
 - c solidarity is the doer.
 - d nature is the doer.

- 6 The movement of mega cities leads to
- (a) earthquakes and floods.
 - (b) deforestation and desertification.
 - (c) deforestation and widespreading floods.

Test (5)

Often, some people ignore the value of appreciation in family life. There is a saying, «Honey catches more flies than vinegar,» which tells people to take the positive approach to praise people. Each of us likes to be with people who make us feel good about ourselves. In family life, there is no exception. Family members need to be praised, loved, accepted, and appreciated. These are essential characteristics to build a strong family since all family members can develop a strong positive attitude about themselves and each other in their families.

Every family should recognize the individual accomplishments of each member. A simple statement means a lot to an individual. For example, «You did a nice job,» «Thank you for helping me,» «Thank you for your understanding,» «Thank you for bringing this cup for me.» These are short statements, but can convey appreciation for each member's effort. This type of recognition helps develop a pleasant environment and mutual respect.

There are a variety of ways to develop the ability to express appreciation and make our human relationships work better thus leading to a quality time for the family.

For example, you may start by having family members work together to list a couple of strengths of your family members or have everyone list one person's strengths. This exercise helps family members to become aware of each other's strengths and be more aware of their strengths as a family. Test (6)

Honeybees make buzzing sounds when they fly, but that is not the way how they communicate. Instead, they do some amazing things to tell other bees things they need to know.

Dancing is a helpful way of communication between bees especially when needing to tell where to find flowers. When a bee locates those flowers, it returns to the hive and does a special «dance.» For a bee, a dance means moving in a certain way as it crawls around. There are «round dances» that bees do when the flowers are close to the hive. There are also «waggle dances,» which the bees do when the flowers are farther away.

Bee dances are not the only way a bee communicates. Bees also produce chemicals called pheromones. If an animal like a bear approaches the beehive, the honeybees' bodies start to make these special chemicals. Other bees sense these pheromones and know that an animal is threatening the hive. They all start to fly out to try to sting the animal and scare it away.

You can see there are many ways to communicate that are different from what people do. Imagine doing a dance to tell someone something! The next time you see a honeybee on a flower, think about the bee that did its special dance to tell other bees where to go.
